Subject: Clinical Trial Protocol documents in the CDR

Hi Danielle,

I'm writing to you in your capacity as CCCT's Communications Lead with some information about an update to the former data source of the Cancer.gov Clinical Trial Search – OCPL's CDR system. As you know, the data source/system of record for the Cancer.gov Clinical Trial Search changed several years ago from OCPL's CDR system to the Clinical Trials API that pulls from the CTRP database.

As part of a process to streamline the CDR system and make it more efficient, the CDR team will be purging documents that are no longer in use in the CDR and do not have dependencies with other documents, database tables, or processes in the CDR or other systems. This inventory of unused documents includes the Clinical Trials Protocol documents. A "dump" of the unused documents was taken last summer and will be retained.

Though CCCT has not had a need to access the Clinical Trials information in the CDR for quite some time, given the change in the system of record, OCPL wanted to let CCCT know about the CDR Clinical Trial Protocol document removal as a courtesy.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Amy
